WELCOME TO THE SMITH

A state-of-the-art flexible workplace in the Royal Borough of Kingston upon Thames, refurbished with purpose to maximise your wellbeing and productivity at work.

The Smith is a cutting-edge workplace with an address that's steeped in history on one of Kingston's main thoroughfares, London Road. Our recent updates have transformed the building from the ground up into a leading example of what a workplace can offer in terms of features and facilities that prioritise wellbeing. With beautifully-designed interiors, integrated outdoor spaces, and wonderful transport links, it's made for modern businesses.

145 London Road, the site that The Smith occupies, has a fascinating history of industrial use, having been home to micro-precision engineering, sports car design, and famous furniture-making factories in its time. It was also once the base of operations for manufacturers who played a key role in war efforts during the 20th century, including an all-female team of skilled workers producing 450 miles of wire a day and a factory that churned out gun turrets for essential Hawker aircraft.

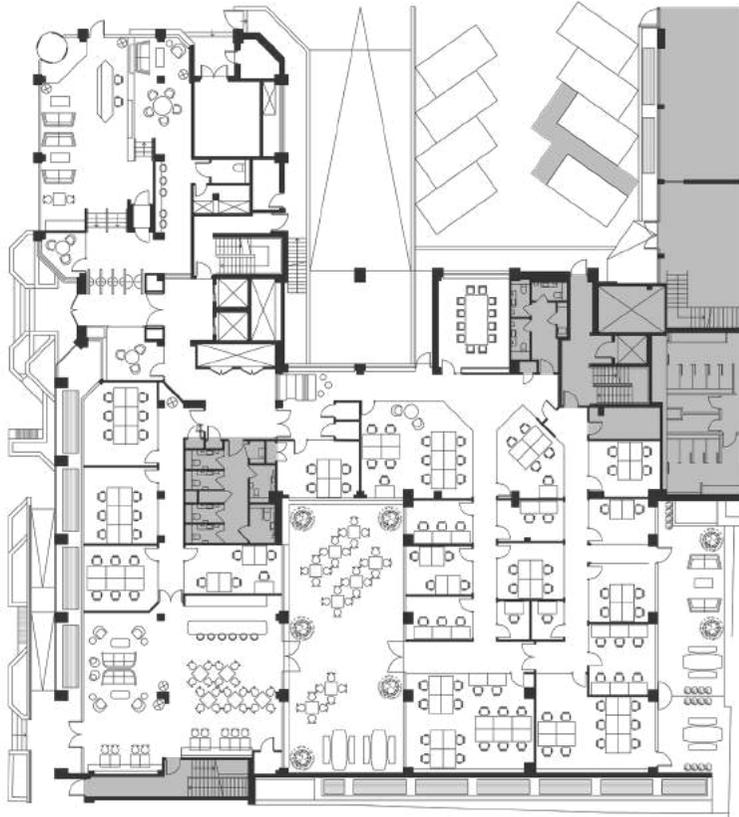

Now, though, it's home to The Smith, upholding the address' legacy for greatness by raising the bar for quality workplaces in Kingston. Just a stone's throw from the High Street and major transport links including Kingston station, it's perfectly situated for businesses that need access to nearby amenities and a quick route into central London. The building is filled with fully-furnished and unbranded serviced office spaces that are ready for plug-and-play use, along with all the features you need to enjoy every workday.

From high-tech meeting rooms and phone booths to a relaxing coffee lounge, sophisticated air conditioning to on-site showers, it's a workplace that looks after your needs. And any time you need a break from the stresses of your day, you can unwind in one of the several serene outdoor spaces or take a trip out to enjoy Kingston's ample shopping opportunities or a relaxing walk along the Thames itself.
